

Do you know who this is?

If you guessed Andy Lambros, the young man made famous years ago in our OM Bologna commercials, you are right.

Andy is now 21 and spends his time going to college and running his aquarium cleaning and window washing businesses in California. He also plays his guitar and does a little acting.

We shouldn't be surprised that the first question Andy asked was "How is the bologna business?"

Andy remembers the filming of the 1975 bologna commercial out in California as being "fun" and lasting all day.

Andy said some people still come up to him and say, "I've seen you somewhere before."

In fact, the 1975 Oscar Mayer commercial was so memorable that when Larry King had a TV special recently he asked Andy, who was in the front row of the audience, to stand up and asked viewers to try and identify his familiar face. After a commercial break he showed the 1975 commercial and identified Andy on national television.

Whether people remember him from the memorable Oscar Mayer Bologna commercial may not be clear to others but to us, Andy will always be remembered as the curly-haired youngster who sang his way into our hearts.